

About Keegan:

Success is not final; failure is not fatal: It is the courage to continue that counts.

Drawing encouragement, energy and drive from this thinking, Keegan is at ease with start-ups and established businesses alike and joins Grow on the back of a fascinating career ranging from Engineering, Construction, and Research and Development arenas, to holding senior positions in Project Management and High-Performance Corporate Coaching.

Keegan's Credentials:

Before his role as a High-Performance Corporate Coach, Keegan held the position of Director of Projects, leading Project Management and Commercial Operations in the Construction industry. He also took on the additional role of Quality, Commercial, and Contract Management. This provided him with a generous understanding of Business Finance, Strategy, Execution and People principles, allowing him to seamlessly integrate his knowledge into the world of business coaching.

Cutting his Project Management teeth at global engineering consultancy, Worley Parsons, Keegan was also exposed to Transformation and Change Management while he became an internationally recognised Certified Associate in Project Management. His earlier years found Keegan at NECSA working in R&D. Here, Keegan completed the Reach Africa Mentorship Programme which, in many ways, paved the way for his coaching career.

Keegan currently serves on the Allan Gray E-Squared Investments Advisory Board Panel, and the board of directors of Nafasi Water as a non-executive director and chair of the Social, Ethics and Transformation committee.

How Keegan can help your business:

Keegan's exposure to a range of environments uniquely positions him as a coach who has weathered the very different storms that impact both multinational corporations and smaller businesses.

Apart from having a strong 'systems' background, Keegan also solidified his ability to effect growth in a business applying various coaching techniques to assist with individual growth, which in one instance allowed him to identify and treat an existing middle management gap in a top organisation.

He demonstrates a reflective understanding of people and business and the nature of the association that exists between these two elements. Keegan's process and subsequent accomplishments are characterised by systematic collaboration and strong partnerships, fostered by a clear focus on achieving the remarkable results that the Grow Business Coaching Philosophy can unlock. Keegan also serves as a Mentor for the National Mentorship Movement, a vehicle for supporting young entrepreneurs.
